

Dear LSPA Member:

As the end of the summer nears, I want to share with you a few NASP updates.

As you begin to gear up for the new school year, you will want to check out the back-to-school resources available at www.nasponline.org/families/index.aspx#back. The offerings include several handouts and audio articles for parents on topics such as homework, school refusal, anxiety disorders, and much more. Don't forget to utilize the Resource Library, which is organized alphabetically by topic, throughout the school year to easily find resources on the topics you need. You can access the library at www.nasponline.org/resources/index.aspx.

You can download NASP's latest podcast on treatment integrity, featuring Lisa Sanetti, at www.nasponline.org/resources/podcasts/treatmentintegrity.aspx. Don't miss the additional resources on the topic, including an article from School Psychology Review and a chapter from Best Practices in School Psychology V.

Consider getting your school year off to a strong start with two top references. As a NASP member, if you act before September 30, you can save $100 off the list price on the practice essential, Best Practices in School Psychology V. Visit www.nasponline.org/publications/index.aspx to take advantage of this offer. For even more up-to-the minute material, consider purchasing access to the NASP EBSCO Online Library, which consists of peer-reviewed journals with more than one million full-text articles.

While on the NASP website to view these helpful resources, please visit 'View My Account' in the top right corner of the website to update your contact information. You can update your mailing address if you've moved over the summer or provide a preferred e-mail address. You can also choose which member e-mail and print communications you want to receive from NASP.

I hope you enjoy the final weeks of summer, and I look forward to bringing you more NASP news in September.

Sincerely,

Erin Gross
NASP State Delegate - LA
